MORE THRILLING THAN FICTION. An Indian Story From Real Life Told in a Committee Report.

Hidden away in the numerous committee rooms in the great Capitol building are tons of documents of all descriptions representing the hopes and fears of thousands of claimants for even-handed justice or public bounty. Many of the claims are meritorious, but they slumber just as soundly as the least excusable or most dishonest demand ever made on the public purse. One of the most interesting of these petitions has just been reported from the House committee on pensions with a recommendation that the bill covering the case become a law. As a rule congressional committees are not given to sentiment, but this especial subdivision says that no case has been considered by it which appeals more strongly to the sense of justice than this one. The story as told by Representative De Lano in the report is a most thrilling one. Christina Geisel, now Christina Edson, emigrated in the early years from the Atlantic states to the shores of the Pacific, and with her husband, John Geisel, and their little family husband, John Geisel, and their little family they settled upon the shores of the Pacific ocean, near the mouth of the Rogue river, in Oregon. Their house was upon the then traveled trail leading from the coast of California into Oregon. They were comfortably fixed when they settled there at that time. John Geisel mined the fine gold dust on the ocean beach, and this, together with his stock upon the prairies and what was received by his fambeach, and this, together with his stock upon the prairies and what was received by his family from the passing travelers for lodgings, constituted their means of livelihood. A friendly Indian was employed about the premises in occasional services. The village of the Indian tribe of the "Too-toot-nas" was 8 miles whether the agreed facts are sufficient (as we desired to settle the agreed facts are sufficient (as we desired to settle the agreed facts are sufficient (as we desired to settle the agreed facts are sufficient (as we desired to settle the claims of the republicans to the Senate seats. Very little apprehension existed among the settlers as to any hostile intent on the part of the Indians. Ben Wright, the Indian agent in the vicinity and known in the Pacific states as a daring Indian fighter, gave positive assurances that no danger existed.

SURPRISED IN THEIR HOME.

On the night of February 22, 1856, the settlers for some miles around attended a ball at Rogue river in observance of Washington's Rogue river in observance of Washington's birthday. The Indians, expecting to find the country comparatively defenseless, owing to the assemblage at the ball, concluded upon a general massacre of the whites who remained at home. Owing to the illness of one of the children none of the Geisel family attended the

About midnight Mr. Geisel was awakened by a rap upon the door and by hearing their in dian servant saying that he desired to obtain something to eat. Upon this the door was opened, and immediately several stalwart Indians rushed in and commenced their attack, with long drawn knives and tomahawks, upon Mr. Geisel.

Mrs. Geisel, leaving her three-week-old infant in bed and though quite feeble, rushed to her husband's rescue. In the conflict she received a severe wound. Her husband was soon overcome and fell dead in her presence.

She was securely bound and with her infant. She was securely bound and, with her infant and a seven-year-old daughter, was forced without. There she witnessed her three boys who during the war lost an arm or leg at or taken from their little beds in an adjoining so near the joint that an artificial limb cannot room and while piteously begging for life they were, one by one, slaughtered in her presence. After rifling the house of all such articles as they desired they applied the torch to it and compelled their captives to witness its destruction, with the burning of the bodies of the slain. Mrs. Geisel, barefooted and clad in her thin gown and with her two children, was were exchanged or ransomed by the white peo-ple who were forted at the mouth of the Rogue

HOW PORT ORFORD WAS SAVED.

During her captivity Mrs. Geisel took careful notes and sketches of what she observed. She discovered that several allied tribes were constructing very strong fortifications, from which they proposed making raids upon all the sur-rounding country in California and Oregon and thus complete the destruction already be-gun. Mrs. Geisel discovered a concealed apand thus complete the destruction already begun. Mrs. Geisel discovered a concealed approach through the mountain gorges into this fortification and village by which, if it could be assailed in that direction by sufficient force assailed in that direction by sufficient force, defense would be without avail. She also learned from conversations among the Indians in their own language, which she interpreted,

TURNING THE TABLES.

Soldiers and volunteers were soon on the ground, and availing themselves of the information communicated by Mrs. Geisel they made a sudden assault upon the Indian fortifications by way of the approaches discovered by the captive woman and after a closely con-tested battle they completely routed and killed by the captive woman and after a closely contested battle they completely routed and killed many of the Indian warriors. This defeat so dispirited them that they never rallied again and were afterward the most peaceable Indians on the Pacific coast. The Rogue River war, which extended over a large portion of southern Oregon, was substantially ended at this place. It is a part of the written history of the Pacific coast states and territories. Their Preliminary Games.

Anson's men met the Phillies again at Jacksonville, Fla., yesterday and defeated them in true Ansonian style. The score was 9 to 4, the victors making all of their scores after their opponents had made theirs. The batteries were Gleason, Vickery and Clements and Coughlan, Hutchinson and Kittridge. Harry Wright's "ponies" made 8 hits and 5 errors. Wright's "ponies" made 8 hits and 5 errors, and Anson's "colts" 9 hits and 2 errors. Vickery's wildness and a bit of poor fielding, together with some batting by Chicago, did the ranging for the exhibition games between Philadelphia and Brooklyn at Savannah, and on his way he stopped at Philadelphia. In an interview he said he had seen the games between the Phillies and Chicagos at Jacksonville and St. Augustine, and he considered both very weak teams. "But you must remember that both clubs have had very little practice," said Mr. Ward. "I tell you the Phillies have jewels in Alien and Hamilton, both of whom cover a great deal of ground and bat like trojans. That great deal of ground and bat like trojans. That man Allen surprised me. He gets over as much ground as any short-stop I ever saw, and can pick up a ball and throw it as quickly and accurately as any of them. The Phillies will surely not be weak at short, and as for Hamilton—well, he is in that field to stay. The old men appear to be very rusty and do not play with the vim which characterized their work last season."

THE DWARFED GIANTS IN THE SOUTH. Mutrie has sailed south, bound for Charleston. S.C., where he and his team of young men will

The players who made up the party and the positions they will probably play when they get to Charleston were as follows: Welch, Galligan, the Sharrott brothers and Turner, pitchers; Pat Murphy, Tom O'Rourke and Clarke, catchers; Dooley, first base; Crane, second base; Joe Farrell, short stop; Young, third base; Hornung, T. H. Murphy and Tiernan, outfielders and Lehane, extra. A young player named Domshke accompanies the team at his own expense. at his own expense.

PROPOSED LAND FORFEITURES. The House committee on public lands today authorized Mr. Payson to report favorably the bill to forfeit to the United States certain lands bill to forfeit to the United States certain lands in the state of Wisconsin granted in aid of the construction of railroads in that state. The bill was amended so that its provisions will extend to all bons fide settlers who have here-tofore applied to be entered. Two other amendments were also made. These provide for the recognition of all existing valid home-stead claims to any such lands and that the lands should be disposed of under the settlement laws only. ment laws only.

NAT. M'KAY'S CLAIM.

The House committee on war claims today authorized a favorable report on the bill introduced in the House by Mr. Atkinson for the relief of Nathaniel McKay. It is proposed by this bill to allow these claims to be presented to the Court of Claims for the termination of demands made against the government on account of the construction of two iron-clad monitors and a side-wheel steamer in 1863. This bill passed both houses at the last session of Congress, but was vetoed by President Cleve-

THE ADMISSION OF IDAHO. The House committee on territories today authorized a favorable report on the bill introduced in the House by Mr. Struble to provide for the admission of the state of Idaho. Orleans May Come to America. The Duchess de Chartres and her daughter Mauguerite, the imprisoned Duke d'Orleans' betrothed, have taken up their residence in the Chateau d'Arc, near Clairvaux, which belongs to the Prince de Joinville. The duke's friends are striving to obtain his release on his prom-ise to retire for a long time to America. The Duke d'Orleans had a violent attack of the colic last night after dinner. The illness is attributed to change of diet consequent on the transfer to Clairvaux.

A Convent to be Sold. The entire property of the Ursuline convent at Pittsburg, with its buildings, will be offered at public sale in spite, it is said, of the interference of the pope. The sale is the outcome of a quarrel between the Mother Superior Alof a quarrel between the Mother Superior Alphonse and five French sisters and by Rishop Phelan, who deposed Mother Superior Alphonse and placed another sister in charge of the institution. The pope decreed not long ago that the French sisters, as founders, be paid $60,000 for the property, but they refuse to compromise and claim the protection of state, not ecclesiastical, laws in maintaining ownership. The property is valued at $400,000.

(Translation.) A new interpretation of the law concerning Champagne Brands seems, since the last few years, likely to prevail.

The right to use a patronymic name appears to be admitted, even where that name enjoys a universal reputation—the fruit of persevering work and heavy sacrifices-and where it has become a veritable property for the Founder of the Brand, as has been confirmed by several judgments of our

Our. Brand, for some time past, has been the aim of a kind of competition, which we cannot too severely comment upon. Without wishing to have recourse to litigation, which is repugnant to us, we must affirm the incontestable right to our name, which has for a century enjoyed a high reputation throughout the world.

We have to state that Madame Veuve Clicquot Ponsardin never had a Son, or a Nephew bearing her name and able to take advantage of these ties of relationship; that her only successors have been Mr. Werlé and his Son, who from 1831 have directed the affairs of our house; and that our present chief, the Count Alfred Werlé, is the sole proprietor of the
